Silver Producers' Approach Stabilizing Influence

An American Metal Market Staff report reprinted by special permission of the editors.

It is with justifiable pride this reprint is offered to PACE readers for it excels in objectivity and journalistic integrity. American Metals Market "the only daily newspaper of the metal industries" has endeavored to publicize and cover a highly controversial issue since inception: the current silver crisis.

Silver users and producers — two entities of strictly opposing views — have always found American Metal Market as a ready forum for the free expression of their opinions.

In turn, American Metals Market has always succeeded in the difficult task of translating opposing views and present them objectively to its readers and for this they are to be commended.

"Reaction to the recent forecast by silver producers that halving the silver content of present coins is likely to be voted by Congress this Spring tended to place bearish clouds in some silver future trading circles.

"The indicated reason is that lowering the silver content will make the Treasury silver supply last longer and thus make more distant the time when the Treasury will end its bargain 'selling price' of $1.2929 per ounce. One factor inferred that some holders of silver which was acquired by delivery from Comex warehouse may be willing to sell at under the present 'futures' prices because of coming losses in storage costs due to the probable postponement of the day for a spot price above $1.2929.

"On Friday, Future prices were up and trading exceeded a million ozs. on Comex. However, December delivery showed a decline of 10 points to 130.20c, just prior to closing.

"But others connected with futures tradings said that bearish thought could be upset by other developments such as increased redemptions, heavier demands abroad, and more hoarding of silver. It seems to follow that at least some speculative interests are in a quandry and do not want to be too sure on predicting what will happen to the silver price — it might hold fairly steady except for some flurries for a couple of years. On the other hand, the strange and seemingly non-logical may occur in futures trading.

"A respected economist told the METAL MARKET that the Silver Producers are taking a moderate, stabilizing, and reasonable approach which also may reflect sound consumerism philosophy (do not encourage substitution, etc.). He felt that an orderly introduction of the new silver (probably 45% content) coins — for instance, the new half dollar might have about 21 cents worth of silver instead of the present 42 cents — could be made with a gradual and simultaneous inflow of the old silver coins. Hoarding coin will hardly lead to increased purchasing power for the holders unless held for very very many years. He also said, what good is it to hold silver certificates — should that be done on a large scale, Congress could act to have them redeemed with Federal Reserve notes.

"On the basis of past and very recent policy, the Silver Users Assn. and the Treasury people probably took the forecast by the producers with a dash of salt and difference of opinion. The former would like to see silver completely removed from coins.

Views of J. B. Lynch

"The formation of the new Silver Producers' Committee and its issuance of background information on the silver and currency picture in connection with possible new Congressional action this Spring was termed 'good news,' by J. B. Lynch, retiring president of Siscoe Mines, Ltd. "Instead of halving the content of the present silver coins, he had been supporting the Groseclose proposal to do the 'equivalent' by doubling the monetary value of the present silver coins. The monetary value of subsidiary coins is based on silver at $1.38 per ounce.

"Mr. Lynch, who has been an articulate critic of the silver legislation that was voted last year, expressed the hope that any new legislation, which should be speeded, will be surrounded with more Congressional awareness than, in his opinion, was evident just prior to the passage of the 1963 changes.

"He recalled that on March 11, 1963, hearings on the present silver legislation having just been started in Washington, he stated the following in a paper presented at a Prospector's Convention:

"Let us examine this legislation . . . Briefly, one dollar bills will be redeemable on demand with silver at $1.29 an ounce from the Monetary Reserve. Note that redemptions will be made to the bearers — not to just American users this time. This is an all important distinction. The dollar bill has printed on it — that it is a silver contract payable to the bearer on demand. It looks from here as though someone has blooped — Charlie de Gaulle and Nikky K. could walk up to the window."

"At that time, he says, 'I was referring to the fact that foreign users and Mints, would have access to Treasury silver by means of 'certified check purchases.' I learned this through inquiry as to how the mechanics of providing 'redemption' silver to large buyers would be carried out under contemplated Treasury procedure.

"However, the hearings were so rushed that this all important information was never developed for the advice of the Congress. The Treasury did not volunteer this point. However, the Congress may be excused for not raising this question. The silver problem is varied and complex. The mining industry (along with the Treasury) failed to bring out the mechanics of the Treasury's intentions.

"Congress enacted the legislation unaware of this big future potential leakage which will now accelerate in the same manner as did the 91 cent bargain sales and the raid on the silver cartwheels. Few, if any, members of the Congress could have been aware of this pitfall hidden in the legislation since it was never mentioned in the course of the brief House and Senate debates on the Bill."

"Without some steps such as are expected by the Silver Producers Committee to be voted by Congress this Spring or sooner, Mr. Lynch said, the U. S. Treasury would be exhausted of silver probably before the end of 1965."

Hawaiian Numismatics

High Investment Potential Present

by Maurice M. Gould

HAWAIIAN coins were always of great interest to collectors, but since its admission to Statehood, a tremendous surge of interest has taken place in every phase of Hawaiian numismatics, including coins, tokens, and paper money.

After the arrival of Captain Cook in 1778, the Hawaiians used a variety of articles as money, such as nails, beads, and bits of iron, and necessary trading was done by barter.

During the 19th century, sandalwood became a medium of exchange between the chiefs and foreign traders and then with the reign of Kamehameha I, gold and silver were accepted as a medium of exchange.

Because of the scarcity of small foreign coins on the Island, several individuals, firms and institutions, were given permission to make their own scrip.

The first token currency was issued at the Koloa Plantation in Kauai during 1836. The manager, who could not obtain enough coin to pay his men, issued scrip in 12½c, 25c and 50c denominations, which were redeemable at the Plantation Store, and one unusual facet of this issue is that they were overprinted on French theatre tickets. The values were of different sizes and were printed for William Hooper, the manager, in Honolulu.

Other paper money issues were at the Mt. Pleasant Silk Plantation in Kauai during 1843 and in 1844 notes were also issued for the Wailuku Female Seminary and were used for transactions between the school and students.

In 1883, Hawaii issued its first National Treasury bills. These are all rare and in 1893 a $1.00 bill was discovered, crudely printed, "Hawaiian Islands, Provisional Government."

During 1895, the American Banknote Company printed three series of bills, including silver and gold certificates, all of which are very rare today. Later U.S. notes used on the Hawaiian Islands were treasury issues of gold certificates from $10 to $10,000, silver $1 certificates, U.S. $2 and $5 notes, National Banknotes from $5 to $100, and Federal Reserve Notes from $5 to $10,000.

The small size notes with the Hawaiian overprint used during World War II are well known to collectors and were issued in 1934 and 35, with the following denominations: $1, $5, $10, and $20.

Very few coins were issued for the Kingdom of Hawaii, the first being in 1847—a copper one cent piece bearing the head of Kamehameha III. The cents are all dated 1847 and are quite scarce. A hundred thousand of these pieces were coined, but many were not accepted by the superstitious natives and hundreds of pieces were thrown into the sea to disappear forever. It is especially difficult to obtain the cents in uncirculated condition. A souvenir copy of these cents has been made in recent years, but it can easily be detected from the original.

The most famous issue of coins are the series of 1883. These were issued in the following denominations—10c or one dime; $1/4, $1/2, and $1.00, and were coined at the San Francisco Mint. The engraver was the world famous Charles Barber, engraver of the Philadelphia Mint. His excellent workmanship made these coins extremely attractive and much sought after.

One half million pieces of the $1/4 and $1 were struck, 700,000 of the $1/2 and 250,000 of the dimes.

The great majority of the dollars were withdrawn from circulation and melted, leaving approximately ten percent of the issue outstanding. A great many of these beautiful pieces found their way into various forms of jewelry and many were holed for use in bracelets.

All of the pieces, except for the quarter dollar, are very difficult to obtain in uncirculated condition. A small hoard of quarter dollars came to light, so that for the time being, they are obtainable in nice uncirculated condition.

Some dealers who stock Hawaiian coins offer the four silver pieces by the set and in most cases, this is the least expensive way to purchase them.

There are a few medals and orders, most of which are scarce or rare, although most of the recent issues since 1959 are available at very reasonable prices. One of the Statehood medals was released with a misspelling, the Island of Oahu, spelled Ohau. Twenty-five thousand had been struck before the error was discovered and then new dies were made for the remainder of this issue.

The Mishler medals, struck in six different metals, are now real collectors' items as very small numbers were made in the various metals.

The Hawaiian Sesquicentennial Half-Dollar was issued in 1928 with a striking of 10,008 pieces. This is one of the rarest of the commemorative half-dollars and the price has skyrocketed during the past few years. The coins originally sold for $2.00 each. Fifty pieces were issued in sandblast proof for presentation to celebrities.

There are a number of trans-

portation tokens, many of which are common, and may be obtained for a nominal sum. These are listed both in the Whitman Hawaiian book, as well as the Transportation Token book.

The last series which we have not mentioned are the Tokens. Actually, very few Tokens were used on the Islands and is just the reverse of Alaska where thousands of Tokens were used, especially in various bars and saloons. Among the Tokens issued were those for school cafeterias, department of public instruction, bakery, ice company, and saloon tokens. The most famous are the Plantation Tokens, which are all scarce or rare. These come in the 12½c, 1/2 real or 1 real denomination, six cent or ½ bit.

They were issued during the 1870's and '80's, in most cases to pay laborers, and were accepted at company stores only. The two most famous Plantations were the Haiku Plantation and the Wailuku Plantation.

The Thomas H. Hobron Railroad Token was issued in the 12½c or Two Bit denominations and then when it was absorbed by the Kahului Railroad, Tokens in the denomination of 10c, 15c, 20c, 35c, and 75c were issued. All of these Railroad Tokens are very scarce and in demand. A very unusual numismatic item is a test striking of the Hobron Dies on an 1872 half-dollar. This piece is Unique and was in the collection of the author for a number of years and is now in the collection of the famous Hawaiian collectors, the Ostheimers of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

One of the rarest Tokens is the John P. Waterhouse piece issued in 1862. This Token circulated throughout the Islands and was redeemed by Waterhouse at his dry goods store. It is very difficult to find these pieces in nice condition.

Now as to the possibilities of the Hawaiian items for collecting and investment — the Whitman Book on Hawaiian Coins, Tokens and Paper Money, which is now in its second edition, with the comprehensive information, attracted a great many new collectors to this series. Very little had previously been written regarding Hawaiian numismatics. Recently many individual articles have appeared in various publications, all adding to our knowledge and interest.

In the paper money field, the only pieces available are the war-time Hawaiian overprint notes. These may be still picked up in new condition and except for the higher values, the price is nominal. I have even seen these offered in bundle lots in the past.

The earlier notes are seldom offered and when they are, at prices beyond the reach of the average collector, many times appearing in auctions only.

The 1847 cent is advertised fairly frequently in from holed to uncirculated condition. An average condition piece sells at approximately $50.00, while the uncirculated piece brings $100 to $125. There are no quantities of these coins showing up, so these prices will prove to be a good investment, as well as a nice item for a collection.

The early tokens are seldom offered and they will run from $50 to $150, depending on the condition and because there are so few pieces available, these items will steadily increase in value. There is a Dew's copy of the Hobron Token and if you check the lower edge of the reverse, you will find the word "C. Copy," which signifies that this is a Dew's copy which was struck in 1960 by J. N. Dew's.

The Waterhouse Token is an especially desirable piece because while most of the other tokens have just a star or minor emblems on them, the obverse of the Waterhouse has the bust of of His Majesty, Kamehameha IV on it. The reverse depicts a beehive. This piece is highly sought after and has brought high prices at auctions.

Some of the early saloon tokens are scarce and it is extremely difficult to obtain a complete set.

Some of the school cafeteria tokens and transportation tokens are easily obtained at reasonable prices.

The silver issue of 1883 will always be in demand among collectors throughout the world, first as the type coinage of the Kingdom of Hawaii, with only one date of each denomination of the silver coinage. There are a few dealers who stock Hawaii in all the denominations, but as more and more collectors come into the market, their stocks will become weaker and weaker and the pieces more difficult to obtain. You will notice very frequently that there are many "buy ads" for Hawaiian coins and this gives the coinage a fairly staple price. There should be a steady increase in price in this series over the years, with the uncirculated conditions having the highest percentage rise.

Proofs are known, but are extremely rare. They are seldom offered for sale in the 1883 silver issue.

Of interest to the collector are the Pattern Coins of Hawaii. All of these are scarce and the pieces

Profile of a Contemporary Scapegoat: The Coin Collector

Editorial by C. F. Verbeke
NUMISMATICS and politics do not mix! This is a well-known fact, for culture and intellect can not blend in with half truths and mystification.

It was a long list of people including overzealous Congressmen, sensation-seeking columnists, frustrated bankers and White House-favor-seeking elements from within the numismatic community who brought about the unholy marriage of numismatics and politics.

Congressional hearings, investigations, inflammatory articles, and other ejaculations alternatively implicated or exonerated coin collectors, shifted the blame to dealers, reimplicated coin investors — the list continues to infinity with variations on the theme.

One fact emerges clearly, however: the silver crisis which has been caused by decades of inept official fumbling is not related in any manner to coin collecting or even hoarding. The proportion of the silver crisis exceeds by far the narrow realm of responsibility attributed to hoarding.

To what extent the coin shortage was influenced by collectors or hoarders is conjectural—although they made excellent scapegoats. Again the realm of the coin shortage points at broader causes and effects, preferably population explosion, increased retail operations, vending machines, etc.

Having thus established the unequivocal fact that numismatics was most unwillingly dragged by the ears into the political arena, numismatics' preoccupation with politics or its own survival in a new environment is natural, justifiable, and moreover, compelling.

The new environment is a shifting world of half truths about U.S. monetary policies, a coverup job for dwindling gold and silver reserves, and the preparation for worse evils than ever witnessed before in matters of domestic currency.

That a debased or totally base U.S. coinage is in the making appears now inevitable. If such a move is dictated by considerations of national security and protection of the economy, it should be given full support by the American people regardless of any considerations. However, it is incumbent upon the new administration to bring its currency problems to the attention of the general public, not by pointing the finger at the would-be culprits—hoarders, not by hearings at which witnesses appear known for their uniformity of thought, but by a frank and public exposure of the silver predicament situated in the proper perspective.

The silver problem cannot be solved by the cheap and antiquated clinches re-

Sound Currency or "Fiat Money"

No Significant Change in View Since 1880

By Christian Verbeke

Is a debased silver coinage acceptable to the American public? Are declining gold reserves backing U. S. currency a serious threat to the domestic monetary system? These are the questions likely to be asked with increased persistence in the near future.

It is unquestionable, the retirement of some 1.3 billion silver certificates, in the process of being replaced by Fed notes, can only add pressure to an already protracted gold reserve situation. This aspect of the United States monetary workings is perhaps only to a lesser extent the object of public awareness. Indeed, gold backing of paper money and its implications remains somewhat of an abstract and nebulous subject to most.

The same cannot be said of United States coinage since there exists relative public awareness of its intrinsic value. How well the public mind is conditioned to to accept substitutes for silver is conjectural. The extent of public reaction to a debased coinage can not be easily estimated, as this would be the first such move in the history of U. S. currency. There being no precedent, the evaluation of possible consequences is entirely speculative.

Ethically speaking, and provided such term can be applied to monetary matters, the breaking of a one hundred and seventy years coinage tradition is a matter not to be over simplified which must be weighed solely against the necessities of the public interest.

Certain segments of the national press have a different viewpoint on the matter of public acceptance and have reduced the problem to the size of a pure and simple brainwashing job.

Example: when asked recently on a television appearance about possible reactions to the admission of Red China to the United Nations, the managing editor of one of the largest New York dailies cynically replied, "It depends on how well we succeed in conditioning the public mind."

Acceptance or rejection — true and objective information versus the mental conditioning of the public, these are the elements of the silver crisis, the coin shortage, and monetary ills in general which confront the Nation in 1965.

How much has public sentiment on money matters really changed over the years? Unquestionably, against a background of universal erosion of values, gradual obliteration of public awareness has taken place. Or perhaps is the minority view always an expression of disenchantment?

Some eighty years ago the Nation was struggling with the greenback problem. The antics of the newly formed Greenback party were raging throughout the Nation urging paper money: "based on the faith and resources of the Nation."

In 1879 an anonymous columnist wrote in Scribner's "Topics of the time" the following, designed to shed some light on public sentiment almost a century ago:

"We suppose that the men who consider soft money better than, and a greenback superior to gold, are mainly honest. There are undoubtedly demagogues among them who know better, and who, for personal purposes, are practicing upon the popular ignorance; but the masses who belong to what is called the 'greenback' party believe that somewhere in the unlimited issue of greenbacks there lies a cure for their own financial depressions and diseases. Their mouth-piece talk about 'cheap money,' and they assert that if money were only cheap, the poor man could have more of it. The fallacy of this doctrine, and the foolishness of this kind of talk, would seem to be obvious enough; but multitudes are deceived by it, and misled to their own disappointment, and to the great disadvantage of the country.

"We do not remember a time when money was any more plentiful than it is now, or cheaper; yet the fact that it is both plentiful and cheap does not start the wheels of business. It is so because there is not sufficient use for it. If it were only scarce and dear, in consequence of the prosperity of business, or the increased use for it, the poor man would have more of it.

"It is perhaps a useless task to reason, or to undertake to reason, with those who have given their allegiance to this greenback heresy, because they can hardly be intelligent readers of anything. We are, practically, already returned to specie payments. Within half a cent, a paper dollar is already as good as a gold dollar; and if we are to get any cheaper money than this, it must be poorer money. There is no such thing as getting money for less than it is worth, or getting anything for less than it is worth.

"If the national bank circulation, based upon pledges of United States interest-paying bonds, were to be wiped out, and the place of this circulation filled by greenbacks, — 'absolute money,' 'fiat money,' — the money might be very cheap, but it would also be very poor. Its purchasing power would be small, and every man would be obliged to pay in labor just its worth. He might, under such circumstances, get ten dollars a day for his work, but he would be obliged to pay a hundred dollars a barrel for his flour, because flour would be produced by labor costing ten dollars a day, on land worth five hundred dollars an acre. There is no legitimate way of getting money but by paying what it is worth, in labor or merchantable material.

"The existing greenback, it may be claimed, is worth as much as a national bank note of corresponding denomination, but it is to be answered that the greenback, as it exists, does not pretend to be 'absolute money.' It is a promise of the United States to pay money, and there is no sane financial man who does not know that it is a promise to pay coin, or something that directly represents coin. A greenback is good, and only good, because the country accepts it as a pledge of gold or silver. The precious metals have been accepted, the world over, as the basis of currency, and when men talk about money they invariably talk about that which always represents a gold or silver dollar.

"Throughout the long period during which specie payments have been suspended in the United States, the value of bank-notes and of greenbacks has been sustained by the faith that ultimately — sooner or later — every dollar would be redeemed or redeemable in coin. There was a time when it took two dollars in paper to buy one in gold, and the gap between that period and this has gradually been closed, as the certainty has increased that the promise upon the face of the paper dollar would be redeemed. If the greenback were to be changed to-day, so that it would bear no such pledge, it would become very cheap money indeed. It would hardly be worth the paper it is printed on.

"There is no power on earth that can legislate value into paper. If paper does not represent value, it is good for nothing, and no government can make it good for anything. The question of cheap money, for the benefit of the laborer, for instance, is 'as broad as it is long.' If money is good for anything, it will have to be paid for in labor. The markets of world settle the values of merchandise. We may legislate that every bushel of wheat shall be worth five dollars, but our legislation will have not the slightest effect upon the price.

"Wheat is wheat the world over, and the price is regulated by the great law of demand and supply. Money is money the world over, and money is gold and silver the world over, and every article that a man possesses and has for sale will be regulated in its price by the relation which it bears to some gold unit in the markets of the world. Money cannot be so made that a man can get something for nothing. It cannot be so made that he can get it for less than the market price in labor. The idea that it can be so made is a delusion and a snare of the devil, or a demagogue, who is his most obedient servant.

"We have been through our experience with 'cheap money.' At the time the present greenback was created, there was a large party in this country who did not believe that, as a government pledge, it would ever be redeemed. Indeed, it was doubtful at that time, in the minds of some of our best patriots, whether the country would survive. The consequence was 'cheap money,' and the consequence of cheap money was of course inflated prices. The laborer's wages doubled and so did his expenses, and a thousand enterprises were entered upon which circumstances did not call for. Trade and manufactures were over-stimulated; and over-trading and over-production were the results. Real estates went up to absurd financial altitudes. Speculation was rife. Nothing could have been any more unhealthy than the financial and industrial condition of the country.

"Then came the crash and the end. It was a fever, — a burning, disastrous fever, — and still the patient lies pale and almost pulseless, though slowly gathering strength. And now our new doctors wish to repeat this horrible business. Just as we are recovering, — just as the country is getting upon a sound financial basis, — we are told, not only that we want more greenbacks, but that we should compel the creditors of the country to take greenbacks for their bonds, thus adding the crime of the swindler to the blunder of the fool. Would it not be well to stop the teaching of what Herbert Spencer calls 'the ornamental branches' in our schools for a while, that our young people may learn something more than their fathers seem to know of political economy?"

The views expressed in 1879 on monetary matters have changed but little in almost a century — and thus, preoccupation with soundness of money is likely to remain a popular topic. The scope of monetary matters may change — its essence never does.

MacARTHUR SET

With the recent passing of General MacArthur, already there are plans to strike commemorative medals in his honor. The Philippine government was way ahead of us, in 1947 as a tribute to their liberator, two commemorative coins (peso and half peso) bearing his portrait were struck at the U.S. Mint in San Francisco.

The coins bear the date 1947 with the S-Mint mark below the date. Only 100,000 pieces of the one peso were struck and 200,000 of the half peso pieces were struck. We consider them to be greatly under-priced in relation to the small quantities minted. This coin should definitely be a part of every foreign coin collection, and we expect the day to come when they will be listed in the Guidebook of U.S. Coins along with other Philippine issues. The 1947-S Peso and Half Peso MacArthur coins belong in every U.S. collection as a tribute to a great American General. It is our belief that these coins will not be too plentiful in the very near future.

We offer you this set in plastic Snap-Lok holder BU ..... $6.00

As above 10 sets in holders - $57.50

1965 AUSTRIAN JUBILEE PROOF SETS

The Austrian Mint has given this firm permission to accept orders for the Jubilee 1965 Austrian proof sets housed in a custom-made plush case. It will contain 9 coins, including 2 unusual silver pieces. These sets are especially priced at an introductory offer of $7.50 per set, with first delivery expected to be in early April. Due to the suspension of U. S. proof sets and the limitation of Canadian proof-like sets, an unprecedented shipment is expected. To insure early delivery at this special low price, a 20% deposit ($1.50 per set) will be required. Upon confirmation in early 1965, you will be billed for the balance. The potential for this low-mintage, near to face value, set should be apparent to all collectors, and investors alike.

Bowers on World Coins

Q. David Bowers

The Teletype systems, once almost exclusively the habitat of modern American coins, are now carrying their share of foreign coin offerings.

Anyone scanning the reams of paper emanating from these machines will see a quota of South Africa proof sets, British Commonwealth proof sets, English crowns, Canadian dollars, etc. listed in both buy and sell offerings.

Numismatic investors as a group are now just beginning to discover the attractiveness of the foreign coin field. Many of the popular issues such as South African sets and British sets are quite rare. While tape offerings of 3 or 4 of a particular set are sometimes seen a group of 100 sets all of a single date would be indeed rare. One result of this is that these sets are not traded as actively as are, for instance, modern American sets. Consequently prices are not reduced to an exact science.

In the field of American proof sets it is easy to evaluate a set down to the last 25c. One can ascertain that the value is $7.50 bid and $8.00 asked for a particular set, for instance.

Quotations in the foreign coin field are apt to be vastly different. There is probably no more interesting example of this than the recent notation we observed concerning a 1951 Ceylon proof set. This Ceylon set is quite rare . . . recent mintage figures published in Coin World indicate that only 150 sets were struck. Two of these recently came up for sale within one week of each other on the tape . . . one priced at about $200.00 and the other priced at nearly $1,000.00! The same phenomenon was observed with a 1923 South Africa proof set with gold. One offering was made at

POSTAGE AND INSURANCE EXTRA

Phyliss Jo Farrand

 P O Box 1338
TORRANCE, CALIF.

$1,200.00; and another offering at $2,200.00.

If anything, the above shows that the would be buyer of foreign coins and sets is in dire need of books and information covering the subject. While the buyer of foreign coins will still have to make his own purchase decisions it is certainly helpful to have on hand such figures as mintages, number of sets melted or destroyed, distribution policies, etc.

The sphere of activity in the foreign coin field investor-wise is gradually widening. At first interest was limited only to proof sets. Many of the dealers and investors just getting into the market felt that here is an area with little risk and in which many factors were finite. The mintages were known in fairly exact numbers; the coins generally required no grading experience, etc. Now these same dealers and investors are discovering other fields... first on this list of new activity seems to be coins of the British Commonwealth...

spearheaded by intense interest in recent English crowns and South African crowns.

There are many foreign fields which have had their surfaces barely scratched as yet. Most minor coins of the world by date and mint are completely neglected at the present time. Really rare dates may be purchased for nominal sums. Their turn will be coming up on the list; if not in a few months then in a few years. But it will inevitably come.

We have been heartened by the cordial reception given this column. We are appreciative of the many letters and inquiries received... and have done our best to answer them all within a reasonable length of time. If you have any particular subject in the foreign field which you would like to see discussed here send the writer a note outlining your interests.

Lincolns At Fair Prices

Normally we do not advertise our coins as we have always had a large counter trade and have not had to advertise to sell. However, to be very honest with you, our counter trade has been way off the last few months. We have therefore decided to go into the mail field, and as you can see we are starting with today's best buy at prices that are hard to beat. We are able to give these prices only because we have a large stock of Lincolns built up over the years, and although we are not even breaking even on recent purchases, we are making money on what was bought some time ago. Every coin priced we have in sufficient quantity, our grading is conservative, and you are protected by our moneyback guarantee. Check the other ads first, then give us a try, we want to get into the mail order business for good, and the only way we can is by building satisfied repeat customers. Thank You.

Advertising for Coinage Metals

CHICAGO.—Ads of the kind illustrated here are bound to show up increasingly in metals publications till the silver crisis is solved. The stakes: a multimillion dollar business!

Rumors of debased U.S. coinage or total elimination of silver have naturally whetted the appetites of many metals industries. Should silver content be lowered to 500 fine, which seems to be the minimum desirable fineness, nickel may well emerge as the possible winner of the contest.

Nickel supplies appear plentiful and its price as a substitute for silver is most desirable. Recent prices for nickel ingots average 85 cents per pound, a negligible fraction of the price of silver. A host of U. S. and foreign firms stand to gain by the move — not the least of them the international Nickel Company, familiarly referred to as INCO.

Who cares if our money is made of Columbium instead of silver?

Stainless Processing does. And so should you. Because Columbium can mean a lot of profitable business in the years to come. (Columbium could replace silver in coins). "Cinderella" metals like Titanium, Tantalum and Zirconium are only a few of the exotic ones which could become a good percentage of our business and yours.

That's why we've piled up a backlog of experience analyzing them in our own "Wet" scientific laboratory. And why you should use these facilities to find out what your scrap is worth. Then you'll know exactly what you're selling.

Just send along your samples. We'll send an analysis. Free. Overnight service. And you're under no obligation to sell to us.

and a much needed shot in the arm for the nickel industry.

The hopefuls: "off-beat" metals, the producers of Columbium, Tantalum, Titanium, and to a lesser extent Hafnium and Zirconium. Yet another possibility: Stainless steel — least mentioned of them all, the metal is successfully used in many foreign countries. Probable solution to the silver crisis can be expected in the CANADIAN coin prices are rising faster than ever as collectors and speculators in Canada and the U. S. scramble for coins.

kept by friends and admirers of the former

Queen as souvenirs. The issues were extremely small, from four to fifty pieces, and are seldom offered, even at auctions. Patterns were struck in the year 1881 by King Kalakaua and it is thought that the pieces were struck in Paris. Occasionally a used piece is found, showing that somehow it got into circulation before it was recognized as being a pattern and a scarce item.

Charles Barber, who designed the regular government issue of 1883 coinage, also designed some of the 1883 patterns with the 12 1/2c denomination, which were subsequently discarded.

To sum up the opportunities in Hawaiian coin collecting, for the investor—the entire series has great possibilities, but with the hard money being in greater demand, the coins and tokens would have the greatest potential.

For the person who wants to put away quantities of the coins in which he invests, the 1883 quarter dollar may still be obtained in small quantities from time to time and the other denominations of 1883 may still be available in sparser quantities. This is the only issue where any quantities are ever offered.

Careful purchases of the early tokens, especially with regard to price and condition, should prove to be an excellent investment because of the real rarity of the material.

Since the original Hawaiian Whitman book was published, very few new numismatic items have come to light and this is the opposite of many other countries where a new publication will bring many unlisted pieces out of hiding.

The Hawaiian half-dollar of 1928 has been priced out of the range of the average collector, and will continue to have its ups and downs along with the entire U.S. commemorative half-dollar series.

For a real numismatic thrill, collect the coins of our fiftieth State, covering a period from 1836 to date. These coins combine art, beauty, design, and history, as well as a safe and profitable investment over the years. Aloha!

FACTS YOU SHOULD KNOW!

Regarding the 1964 Pointed and Blunt tail 9 Dimes

The Pointed tail 9 is rare, the Blunt tail 9 is common, this is our opinion from a lengthy detailed research. There are less than 2,000,000 Pointed tail 9 1964-P dimes, with over 300,000,000 Blunt tail 9's with the balance of this year and next year this could mean up to 1,000,000,000 yes, one billion, Blunt tail 9 dimes of 1964-P will be available. When you consider the ratio 2,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 you have a rare item.

The 1964-D Pointed tail 9 isn't as rare but only some 47,000,000 are out in comparison to up to 2,000,000,000, yes two billion Blunt tail 9's. The U.S. Mint is out to flood the market! And they will. But the more they make the more rare the Pointed tail 9 dime will be!

The pattern is the same as the 1960 small date cents. They were struck the early part of the year, thereafter all large dates; so be it hereafter all Blunt tail 9 dimes.

The 1964 Proof-sets have the same variety, again the Pointed tail 9 is in a strict minority, only 35,000 similar to the 1960 small date proof set mintage. Over 3,000,000 1964 proof sets will be made, thus 2,965,000 will be of the Blunt type!

We have a limited supply of this promising dime variety.

ferring to "narrow Western silver mining interests" or "demagoguery" and the like. It can not be solved by subterranean actions hastily taken and subreptitiously foisted upon the people.

The coin shortage can not be solved by short strip TV commercials which leave the viewer dumb-founded and wondering about the level of his own intelligence; it can not be solved by the exacerbated outcries of sensation-seeking columnists who have invaded journalism as a cure for their own frustrations and utter inadequacies.

The silver crisis and coin shortage can be solved however by the cooperation of an informed public and enlightened government from a position of knowledge and objective information.

This raises the thorny question of the new Presidency.—Yes indeed the President of the United States also happens to be the President of seven million coin collectors although this is not always immediately discernible.

An overzealous press is stressing the blooming and glowing terms of the "mandate" given the new President, Mr. Johnson. How seriously the President himself takes the "mandate" for under the appearances of bonhomie resides an intelligent and hard hitting politician with an uncanny knack for realism not about to undertake a role to which he himself feels he cannot live up to.

Mr. Johnson's temporary absence from Washington and an adjourned Congress have as of late been substituted by reassuring utterances of the national press comfortable in its role of pseudo officialdom.

So it is that news of dwindling U.S. silver reserves, which have now reached 1.2 billion ounces, has little if at all been publicized in the press. European hedge silver buying based on possible devaluation of the pound sterling is equally ignored.

All these problems are present and real, in spite of reassurances benignly expressed under the cover of reporting.

No "mandate" of any sort, bestowed upon any person or persons in whatever public office, is or can become a mandate to attenuate the truth. It is therefore imperative that a total and open report be made to the American people on the future of their coinage, on the disposition of a vital and strategic metal-silver, and on all other aspects of the economy, no matter how unpleasant; anything short of this attitude is subterfuge.

This writer feels that the interests of some seven million coin collectors are only secondary to the national interest, even if the solution to the silver crisis means debased coinage or demonetization and retirement of all silver coinage.

Nonetheless, whatever the solution to the silver crisis may be, the American public is entitled to the truth and nothing but the truth; the numismatic community intends to see to it that the truth becomes known—at any and all cost.

Metals

According to an article by Jack Schreiner, writer for Toronto's Financial Post, some uncirculated 1964 coins have appreciated as much as four times in value. Dealers are now paying as much as $400 for a mint-sealed bag of 1964 nickels, with a total face value of $100.

This demand for coins is believed to be keeping a significant supply of coins out of circulation. The Royal Canadian Mint, already taxed to capacity to meet normal coin needs, has announced measures to limit the number of coins it will be striking specially next year for collectors.

Coin prices have been climbing sharply for several years and numismatic circles are confident the boom will continue for several years. Here is the outlook for the coin market:

Demand for Canadian 1965 coins could be especially heavy, partly because a new profile of the Queen will appear for the first time, and partly because the U.S. Mint is not going to issue any 1965-dated coins. This action was taken because the U.S. Mint has become seriously concerned at the amounts of coinage being hoarded by speculators.

This means U.S. dealers and collectors will look to Canada for 1965 coins, increasing the already strong buying of Canadian coins by Americans.

Until the Canadian Mint expands, the mintages of Canadian coins necessarily will remain low. This limiting factor on supply, coupled with the fierce demand, pushes prices up.

Canadian coins are still low-priced, compared with U.S. coins. This is one reason, along with the premium on the U.S. dollar, for U.S. collectors buying Canadian coins.

Canada should experience another coin boom in the centennial year because the reverse sides of all 1967 coins are expected to carry centennial designs.

The Royal Canadian Mint's experience this year illustrates the frenzied buying of coins for collections. Each year, the Mint produces and packages for collectors both silver dollars and mint sets including all six Canadian coins. Special effort is taken to produce these coins in the premium, unmarred condition prized by numismatists.

In 1958, the Mint got 18,000 orders for mint sets. This year, by the end of April—when the Mint stopped taking orders—it had received 1,750,000 requests for sets. Filling the orders will take until year-end. To avoid this situation again, the Mint has introduced several curbs for next year:

Proof-like silver dollars no longer will be sold separately.

The price of mint sets (face value: $1.91) will be raised from $3 to $4 and customers will be limited to five sets, rather than 50 sets.

It is also reported that chartered banks are discouraging the practice of speculators buying Mint-sealed bags of uncirculated coins and then storing them in bank vaults as collateral for cash loans. The appreciation in coin values more than covers the loan interest—but it also keeps coins out of circulation.

Coin collecting in Canada has mushroomed in the last 10 years. The Canadian Numismatic Association held a national auction in 1954 and sales totaled $5,000. At this year's national auction, sales were more than $100,000.

Canada has more than 200 coin clubs and some of the larger ones also are sponsoring big auctions. The Toronto Coin Club recently put on an $85,000 auction.

Recently, more than $200,000 business was done at the three-day Greater Toronto Coin & Stamp Exhibition, started three years ago by a private group of dealers and numismatists and now one of North America's big coin exhibitions.

Within the last year, a wire service for buying and selling coins has been established in Canada and by facilitating trading, has stimulated the coin market. The Can-Tel circuit originally had 11 dealers last December in the Toronto-Montreal area. Today, it has 42 dealers, a number of them in major U.S. points from New Hampshire to Ohio. Later this year, Western Canadian dealers will be hooked into the service.

Canadian collectors even have their own publication: Canada Coin News was started 15 months ago as a 20-page bi-weekly tabloid, today is a 48-page publication with a circulation of 31,000. Its publisher, Cale B. Jarvis, 53, predicts the current boom in Canadian coins will last at least another four or five years.

Tokyo—Gilroy Roberts, former Chief Engraver of the U. S. Mint and now Chairman of the Board of General Numismatics Corporation, arrived in Tokyo on November 9 to inspect and evaluate new types of minting equipment. He is accompanied by William E. Sauter of General Numismatics.

Joseph M. Segel, President of General Numismatics has announced that the firm plans to open its first minting facility, which will specialize in producing proof coins of "continental quality," early in December. This facility is being established in Yeadon, Pennsylvania, a suburb of Philadelphia. The corporate offices of General Numismatics will remain for several months in the Land Title Building, Philadelphia, while plans are drafted for consolidating its operations in larger quarters.

Pittsburgh—World Proof Collectors Association has recently made the following Director appointments. Mr. Edward C. Black of Canada, Mr. George Hickinbottom of England and Mr. Sergio Torres Martinez of Mexico. All Directors will act as the eyes and ears of WPCA. The object is to keep informed of all activities in the foreign countries with regards to proof coinage. More Directors will be appointed in other countries as quickly as they are qualified.

It is the goal of WPCA to place in the hands of members, proof and mint sets at the lowest Mint price whenever possible. An example is the 3 coin Polish proof set that members can purchase for $10.00, whereas they are currently retailing with some of the dealers for $24.00.

If there is anyone interested in receiving more information on Regular or Junior membership please write to World Proof Collectors Association, 1429 Hawthorne St., Pittsburgh, Penna. 15201—USA.

"Can Nickel Coins be Introduced Without Driving Silver Into Hiding?" asks American Metal Market.

"Reaction in silver mining circles to last week's lecture on nickel coinage by Dr. V. Clain-Stafanelli of the Smithsonian Institution was not on the enthusiastic side, partly because he did not go into detail on how the new nickel coins could be introduced without driving into hiding the silver coins.

"One source said that the views of the coin collector for the National Museum tended to reflect those of the U. S. Treasury and the silver users—they are the source for much of the published information of silver and do not provide the total view."

"He added that the basic policy of the U. S. should be to protect and conserve the only silver reserve in the world until the day when world silver production is brought into balance with world consumption.

"When will this balance be attained? — not for some while because if a switch is made to nickel coins, the silver in the present type U. S. coins will disappear, and even if the U. S. should abandon silver coinage, the world shortage of silver production will continue," he stated.

Space City Averages:

How They Are Obtained

With close to 1,500 separate statistics appearing each week in PACE, a need exists to express this information in graphic form for busy readers.

We are currently charting eight different coin series each week as you see below. These charts are based on Space City Averages, an arbitrarily chosen group of rolls which we feel are representative of the total for that series.

To be included in the Space City Averages rolls are chosen on the basis of three factors: (1) their trading is constant, (2) they are widely held, and (3) they are indicative of the series.

It is obvious infrequently traded items, closely held items, and extremes in the series would not serve this purpose.

Each week the statistical staff of PACE prepares these averages from the information obtained on The American Numismatics Exchange transactions.

The amount expressed in the Space City averages is the total market bid prices for the rolls included in the averages. This is a dollar figure and is compared with previous week, month, and year figures for analysis.

The high and low for 1964 is also shown.

MARKET SUMMARY

NOVEMBER 18, 1964

By Russell Brown

THIS week saw the apparent bottoming out of the minor denominations and the continued ripple of lowering prices in the Morgan dollars and proof sets.

Lincoln cents were unchanged with the few price movements limited to one and two dollar gains and losses. The only exception was the 1935-D which moved back to its July bid level. Many transactions were recorded in the 1948-S and 1954-P rolls, with the former rising two dollars.

Jefferson nickels seemed unwilling to settle down to either a continued decline or to initiate a new advance. Many of the price changes within the series were of a major nature with a $100 reduction by the 1939-D heading the list. The 1951-S and the 1945-P joined in with declines of $10 and $20 respectively.

Dimes moved quietly lower with the Mercuries scoring no advances and the Roosevelts not much better. Only the 1947-P and 1952-P could boast gains of a dollar or more while the 1949-D, 1943-D and the 1942-S lost $3 each or more apiece. Heavy volume was noted in the 1955's.

Washington quarters duplicated the dime series with an excess of declines over advances. The 1946-S jumped $25 due to spirited bidding but at the other end of the line the 1941-S and 1947-S each dropped $10. The gain by the '46-S reversed a prior week trend that saw the issue lose $20.

In the Franklin half dollars, the heavy volume of bidding that has been going on for the past three weeks finally had an upward effect on several of the rolls such as the 1949-D and 1951-S, each of which rose $10 or more. However the 1950 issues are still experiencing hard times with the P and D losing $10 each this week.

The presence of an abnormal amount of Morgan dollar activity set this week apart from its predecessors. Judging from the number of offers to sell at reduced prices, a general reduction of stocks is being attempted by many exchange members. As you will note in the "Coins in the Spotlight" section of the market pages, six issues lost $10 or more in the flurry of selling.

Peace dollars are quiet and anytime a bid is made for one of the key or semi key issues it must be at a level higher than that of the preceding week. Even the two junk Peace issues ('22-P and '23-P) are having a prosperous time of it with the price rising to a minimum of $1,175 per bag for these plentiful coins.

Proof sets, notwithstanding what some would have you believe, are still in the doldrums and the early issues are feeling the pains of continued offerings with no takers. As a result, prices on such key dates as the 1938, 1950 and 1951 lost between five and ten dollars this week. The current date sets appear to be holding firm at last week's levels and despite extremely heavy buying and selling show no inclination to advance.

The Market Opinion

The ripple movement, as discussed last week, is continuing to move through the roll and proof set market. As it is currently projected, the minor series will move out of the decline first and it appears that the movement will be in denominational order with the possible exception of the Jefferson nickels. Already there are healthy signs of increased bidding in cents and dimes and, with this week's declines in the major series, (quarters and half dollars) a bottom of some sort should have been reached.

The only problem series seems to be the Morgan dollars. Many of these issues were purchased under the magic spell of the expected increase of silver prices. Now, as we look at the silver situation in the cold hard light of recent events, it appears that it will be several years before the government will allow the price of silver to escape the $1.2929 tether. And don't forget the impossibility of putting together a B.U. set of these coins. This week, an investor wandered in to one of our local coin stores and wanted to sell one of three sets of the dollars in gem B.U. with the '95 in gem proof. The price? $15,000 each.

ed that the present allocation of redemption silver to 'unknown buyers' on presentation of a certified check is illegal, because the law says silver certificates must be presented. 'Some have large warehouse stocks of 91c and $1.29 silver, obtained by the fast-check method,' he said."

Burned Currency and Security

American Metal Market in another one of its famous "firsts" relates the following incident: "Top security is given to the disposal of metallic oxide bearing ashes derived from the burning of paper currency, CIA and LBJ correspondence, according to an interesting communique submitted by a steady reader of Metal Market's 'Newer Metals' column.

"It is reproduced here, with minor changes — the word 'pandemonium' replaces the actual metal named.

... "I have just come to the unsuccessful conclusion of what I thought was going to turn out to be a real 'goodie' in the 'pandemonium oxide and free enterprise area. I pass my story on to you for kicks — I think it is exciting, but of course anticlimax, since the project did not materialize.

"The U. S. Treasury Department burns worn-out and redeemed silver certificates currency yielding 2 tons of ash per day. It has no use for this material and indicated desire to find a consumer since hauling to the Washington, D. C. dump is very costly. A sample, plus encouragement, was received — even their entertainment of a one-dollar-a-year contract.

"The analysis ran 45% 'pandemonium' oxide plus percentages of oxides of copper, nickel, cobalt from the inks. We arranged for required surety bond in large amount to guarantee prevention of reconstituting unburned particles (ridiculous, eh?). We then had several potential consumers interested. A Bureau head arranged for shipment to us of a significant-size sample. We also had to obtain 'extra' security clearance and were subjected to more screening — to prevent reconstituting.

"THEY then decided: Since 11 of Central Intelligence Agency's papers and all of White House papers are incinerated along with the silver certificate currency, they just couldn't take the risk of letting this be 'unsecure' — so-o-o now they take the ashes to a swamp and bulldoze earth over them for greater security! Ferrets wouldn't have a chance to retrieve the metallic oxides.

"So when you go to bed tonight: Realize that you are more secure because
